

Mark Barbee is the Director of the PMO at Greenberg Traurig and has spent almost his entire career planning and managing the successful execution of projects and multiple project programs for both internal corporate customers and external clients, including: AT&T, the Federal Government, Spherion, Boars Head, and United Health Group. He has worked for several of the largest global management consulting firms as well as starting and managing his own consulting firm. His experiences also include designing and successfully implementing several Project or Program Management Offices (PMO) for a number of $1B+ businesses. He has worked in a variety of industries (including legal services) and across the four major end-to-end process areas, i.e., Procure-to-Pay (P2P), Recruit-to-Retire (R2R), Order-to-Cash (O2C), and Record-to-Report (R2R). His current mandate is to create a full functioning PMO, with project portfolio management and resource allocation management and reporting, while introducing and imbedding structured project management tools and techniques into the project management process.
